Lectures and Addresses

I have given approximately 75 talks and lectures at university and academic association meetings in America and Europe. I have appeared in all capacities on programs of all sections of the American Philosophical Association and the Philosophy of Science Association.

Teaching

I have taught the full range of standard subjects in philosophy, concentrating in philosophy of science, logic, and epistemology. I have designed many new courses and given many special courses - courses on special topics or for special audiences, such as honors undergraduates, graduate students in other fields, and continuing education students. I have served on PhD dissertation committees in psychology. I conducted a government-sponsored series of lectures Albert Einstein during the Einstein Centennial year. I gave a series of lectures for the graduate program in history and philosophy of science at Cambridge University. I have been Visiting Professor at the University of Hawaii and Visiting Scholar at The University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill and Duke University.

Administration and University Service

I have had substantial experience in academic administration. I have been special consultant to the Dean, the Provost, and the Chancellor of UNC Greensboro on many issues of academic policy. I had the primary, appointed role in reforming the undergraduate arts and sciences curriculum at UNC Greensboro, and in that capacity authored and saw through to enactment and implementation the university's current system of curricular requirements. I have had a major role in reviewing and approving research grant applications and in formulating research policy for the university. I served for ten years (including two reappointments) as Head of the UNC Greensboro Department of Philosophy. I have served on over a dozen College and University committees, and currently serve on the University Research Policies Committee. I was a frequent participant on the UNCG Philosophy Club, and have conducted a session of the Great Conversation series. I was a founding member of the UNCG Honors program, served for several years on the Honors Council, designed and taught many honors courses, and maintain an active, ongoing involvement in program activities, including regular participation in and conduct of Honors talks.

Offices Held in Professional Associations

Secretary-Treasurer and Program Chairman, North Carolina Philosophical Society, 1975-77.

President, North Carolina Philosophical Society, 1977-79.

Program Director, Philosophy of Science Association, 1988

Consultation

I regularly referee articles for several major journals and academic presses. I regularly serve as consultant on grant submissions to NEH and NSF. I have served as external referee for several promotion cases and research appointments. I have been a supervisor for PhD students at UNCG (psychology) and Duke University.

Grants and Awards

Grants received in support of research include an NEH Fellowship, an NEH summer stipend, and travel grants from the National Science Foundation and the American Philosophical Society.
